“ Mom never seemed tired a day in her life. When i was young, she worked full time. On Saturdays mom would pick up my grandmother and spend at least half of the day taking her to run errands, because grandmother didn't drive. On Sunday she would transport kids to and from church. Mom NEVER missed a service. This was the time when you had church twice on Sunday, along with Tuesday and Thursday night services. She made sure that Cindy, Andy, and I attended every church party, fund raiser, walk a thon, revival, and every other special event the church might have. In my adult years, mom was " my person" . The person that I would run things past. I would tell her about my day, my problems, my blessings, everything. I called her every day. Sometimes several times a day. She was the best listener. It is going to be a big adjustment living life without her. My comfort is in knowing I will see her again some day. I sure was blessed with the best! I love you, mom!

“ She was a wonderful woman. I had a great playful relationship. She would shake my hand and call me TROUBLE every time I seen her. I would always call her Trouble back. She will be missed.
