“ I always enjoyed working with Darrin on various construction projects. We always had fun. Oddly enough, I worked with his mom, Janet, back in the eighties. I didn't know this until after Darrin and I had been working together. We had a cardboard box that we used on a couple of siding jobs that Darrin had drawn a face on. He named the face/box, Wilson, like the ball in that Tom Hanks movie. He and I got a lot of kicks out of that cardboard box with the face. Wilson and I are going to miss you Darrin.
