“ My wife and I knew Jason Branam for a short period within the last 2-3 years. We hired him to do some carpentry work. We came to looking forward to his daily visits. We learned he was far more talented than being capable of the work he was doing. However, he did what he said needed to be done and he did it very well. We enjoyed conversing with him and realized he was a man with many sad experiences, but he maintained a positive attitude in spite of his troubled life. We were very saddened to learn of his death, He was a man that we shall miss greatly.
