“ It seems appropriate to me to have this heavy snow today. Lewis would have been raising all kind of conversation about it. I see it as a nice welcome to him. When I saw him in FL a few weeks ago, I told him how cold it was going to be when we got home, and sked him if he missed it. He nodded his head yes- I think trying to appease me. I am so glad I got to see him before he left for his next journey. I will always love and miss my brother. My love and prayers goes out to the rest of you.
