“ Max was always joking up to the time I went to visit him in the nursing home and then at Pam's a few weeks before he died. He may have moaned and groaned, but he still could manage a smile in all his pain and discomfort.

To answer your question Max when you said you wished you'd get over whatever it is you have - you're now over it!

Your friend.....

“ So sorry for the loss of your father. I remember your house in the middle of the peony farm and how welcome everyone made me feel so many years ago.

Keep your chin up.
