

Nancy Ann Taylor

October 6, 1949 - November 12, 2021

Nancy Ann Taylor, lifelong resident of Bloomington passed away Friday evening November 12, 2021 at Monroe Hospital. She was born October 6, 1949 to Dale Vaughn And Margaret Messimore Vaughn.

Nancy was a 1967 graduate of Bloomington High School. She spent the first few years of her professional career with Cook Medical Devices before working 30 years with the then Bloomington Hospital before retiring in February of 2008.

Although she and her husband had no formal association with a particular church she was very proud of the fact that she was a baptized Christian. She also thoroughly enjoyed spending time making small quilts.

She leaves behind her husband of 53 years Nathaniel P. Taylor of Bloomington, children Derek Taylor of Bloomington, R. Scott Taylor and his wife Elizabeth Serven of Freedom, Indiana, Rebekah L. Taylor and long time boyfriend Lee Rogers, of Bloomington her grandchild Amaya A. James, as well as Tristan Croucher and Averie Marie Tompkins whom were both raised by Derek.

Nancy was predeceased by her parents.

Funeral services for Nancy will be held Wednesday November 17, 2021 at 1:00PM at Allen Funeral Home and Crematory 4155 South Old State Road 37. Burial will follow in the Valhalla Memory Gardens. Visitation will also be held Wednesday November 17, 2021 from 11:00AM to 1:00PM at Allen Funeral Home and Crematory.

“ I have fond memories of MANY Halloween visits to the Taylor house, she always had the best candy sacks made up for us. She was a good wife, mother, and friend...and I will miss my neighbor through the woods. We send our deepest condolences, and hope you find strength in the memories of her time on this planet, find peace by leaning on those that love you during this tough time.
