“ The first time I met Sandy, she introduced herself and said... “I’m Wendy’s mom, Sandy, but you can call me Mamaw Sandy, everyone else does... “

I spent a lot of my angsty teenage years at her house, hanging out with my big brother and his new wife, Wendy, who quickly became one of the most important people in my life. □

There wasn’t a time Sandy didn’t open her door for me, even if I was there yesterday, and the day before that and the day before that! 😊

She was funny, sometimes sarcastic, and she was always always so very kind to me. Jenny Sue 🤔

I read once, that grief is just love with nowhere to go.. and right now, so many are grieving for Ms. Mamaw Sandy, but I know that’s just a testament of how deeply she was loved. □

I have so many memories, though some of my favorite aren’t fit for sharing... 😊 the ones I know I’ll never forget.

Thank you for being an honorary mamaw... you were one of the best! □
