“ Susan and I worked together at Gentry Park. She worked night shift, I worked evening shift and she was often late getting to work because she'd fall asleep. I bought her a battery powered clock! Another memory is she bought a new coat, but didn't get a scarf or gloves so I bought them and gave them to her. We laughed, we cried. She was my dear friend and I had messaged her when I moved back to Bloomington in November asking if we could have lunch. She didn't respond, but that was not unusual...and I hate that I just saw this at 905pm Saturday night because I didn't get to say goodbye. Rest now, Susie Q. I'll never forget you!!!
