“ I had the pleasure of meeting Susie when she applied for a position as a medical transcriptionist with internal Medicine Associates (IMA). Susie had no previous experience but had taken a course to learn how to become a medical transcriptionist. At our first interview she was given a tape to transcribe, a task which she accomplished perfectly. In learning more about her it was obvious this was someone very special and on my recommendation she was hired for the position. She quickly became a very valuable member of our transcription team and often used her computer skills to troubleshoot problems with our aging equipment. She was also instrumental in reconnecting our computers as management moved our department multiple times to different locations. As the need for our department declined over the years with the move towards voice activated systems and electronic medical records, her skills were recognized by the IT Department and she moved on within the company.

Susie was truly an amazing woman. We all acknowledged her talents as she quietly took care of whatever task she was assigned. She fit in well and we thoroughly enjoyed working with her. Susie, I feel so honored to have known you. You have left this world far too soon but rest in peace now. Your work here is done.

Sending my sincere condolences to the Koons family.

Denise Brown.
