“ Sorry, I'm so late Todd. I want everyone to know what a kind and generous person you were and how grateful I am that you befriended me despite my being a lbit weird. You accepted me and appreciated me. We had many great times and often laughed so hard and long my muscles became sore. We could be calm and serious and sciency or foolish and teenagery, as when downing a half gallon of jalapenos in a foolish game of chicken. We both lost that one. At least you are making me smile right now, and I know not for the last time. I love you Todd.
Jackie, I hope this note finds you feeling stronger and well supported and can find the mind to be at peace in a world that got a little sadder.

“ My condolences to the family of “Zilla”. He was a true friend of mine that I've known for around 30 years. We made so many memories together over the course of that time and although in recent years past it was usually reminiscing of those times we had. He always confided in me, and when when we talked he valued my opinion, as I did his. He will forever be my friend. Sorry Jackie. I hope to see you soon. Jim Ginter

“ I owe my professional career to Todd. He challenged me to go back to school and get my undergraduate degree after recognizing how miserable I was at my lack of progress in my dead-end job. He always encouraged me to excel and we had many deep discussions about a variety of topics over the years.

Plus, Todd and Jackie hid our kids' Christmas presents at their house and each Christmas Eve for many years, we all gathered at our house for a dinner of homemade Chinese food. This was our excuse for getting the gifts delivered in time for Christmas morning.

And finally, who could forget the epic feasts we all shared at House of Hunan's Sunday Buffet. Todd urged my sons to join him in attempting to order and eat each of the dishes featured on their menu, spiced with laughter and friendship.

I will miss Todd. He was a good friend when I needed one. Jackie too.
